ANOL1: The First Encounter

Bourses deliees 2023

Halle Nord Gallery

Geneva, 2023

Installation

"ANOL1:the first encounter" is first 3D animation of "ANOL1" series that explores the rich tapestry of female mythical creatures from Central Asia, shedding light on their untold stories in a decolonial context. Drawing upon the concept of female monstrosity, the animation aims to underline the intergenerational connections and empower future generations with forgotten narratives.

Within the enchanting world of Central Asia, where myths and legends abound, "ANOL1:the first encounter" introduces audiences to a diverse array of female mythical creatures. From majestic goddesses to scary monsters, each character embodies unique qualities, reflecting the cultural heritage and folklore of the region.

As the animation unfolds, the untold stories of these mythical beings are gradually revealed, delving deep into their struggles, triumphs, and the challenges they faced due to marginalization and the erasure of their narratives. Their journey becomes a symbol of resilience, strength, and the power to redefine monstrosity, as they resist conventional definitions and societal norms.

"ANOL1:the first encounter" emphasizes the importance of intergenerational connections by highlighting the role of elder female figures, who pass down ancient wisdom and knowledge to younger generations. Through these connections, the animation showcases the transmission of cultural heritage, the importance of preserving oral traditions, and the significance of reclaiming female agency within a patriarchal context.

Weaving resistance with Berenice Courtin

La Capsule Centre Pompidou Metz Metz, 2023

Installation

The work compares the use of this machine to the traditional weaving loom, into which it incorporates computer code. Through an installation in the form of a collective weaving loom, the audience is invited to participate in this dialogue between craftsmanship and the digital era. They can interact with 3D-modeled characters and symbols that are projected after manipulation, engaging in a dialogue between material and digital realms. The weaving process thus establishes a form of language where structure and symbolism coexist through the creation of pixelated patterns.

I thought you were real, but you called me bourgeois

Grand Tour Geneva, 2022 Installation

Executed as immersive installation "I thought you were real, but you called me bourgeois" collide animation characters and viewers to share the mental journey through saturated worlds that were bootstrapped by reality itself. Different chapters of animation touch upon entanglement between identity politics, the centrality of Western models in decolonial debates, commodification of misery in advanced capitalism, and reactive recomposition of current social structures. Theoretical references largely encrusted into animation surroundings disclose the motley exchange of thoughts between Agarrando pueblo, Rosi Braidotti, Soviet sci-fi and many more.

Characters interactions throughout the scenes bounce fast, but only within a strictly defined set of capitalist parameters that themselves never waver. Despite operating of critical thinking, characters find themselves unable to devise a new political-ideological vision, recover lost possible futures, and indeed the future as such.

The DLT (Distributed Ledger Technology) Whores

Shifting Sites: Territories and Space

Vienna, 2018

Installation

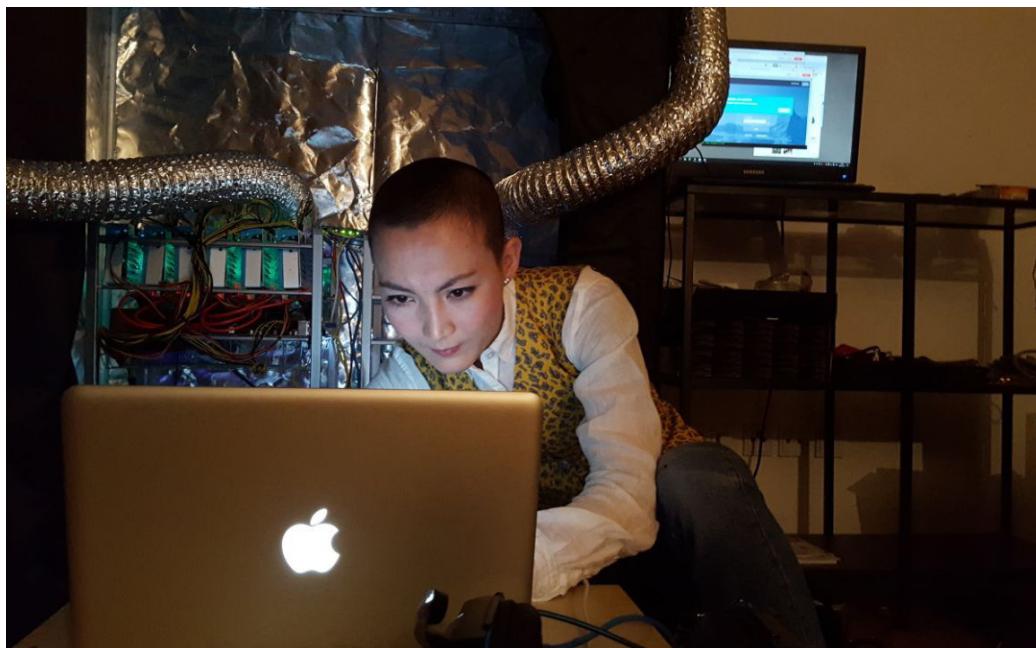

The DLT (Distributed Ledger Technology) Whores project aim to explore the social role of art as an institution within society, specifically because art is partially responsible for what is going to be remembered or forgotten about our culture in the future. The idea is to keep a digital catalogue of the exhibition artwork by storing it within a specifically programmed blockchain. When it comes to museums and other cultural institutions, the preservation function should not be neglected, thus additional value is derived by providing a means of tracing the origin of original pieces of art and keeping records that prove their genuinity.

An open ledger leads to greater transparency in the delivery and presentation of the artwork and its associated transactions, this provides the artist with more powerful tools to control their intellectual property. The DLT Whores project does not exist in a historical vacuum. On the contrary: It has a deep narrative that is given to the public within the trappings of a blockchain. The artist uses art, science and technology as an alternative source of power, along with analysis and political action in order to create a virtual archive/cyber reality of Shifting Sites: Territories and Space exhibition.

Video installation

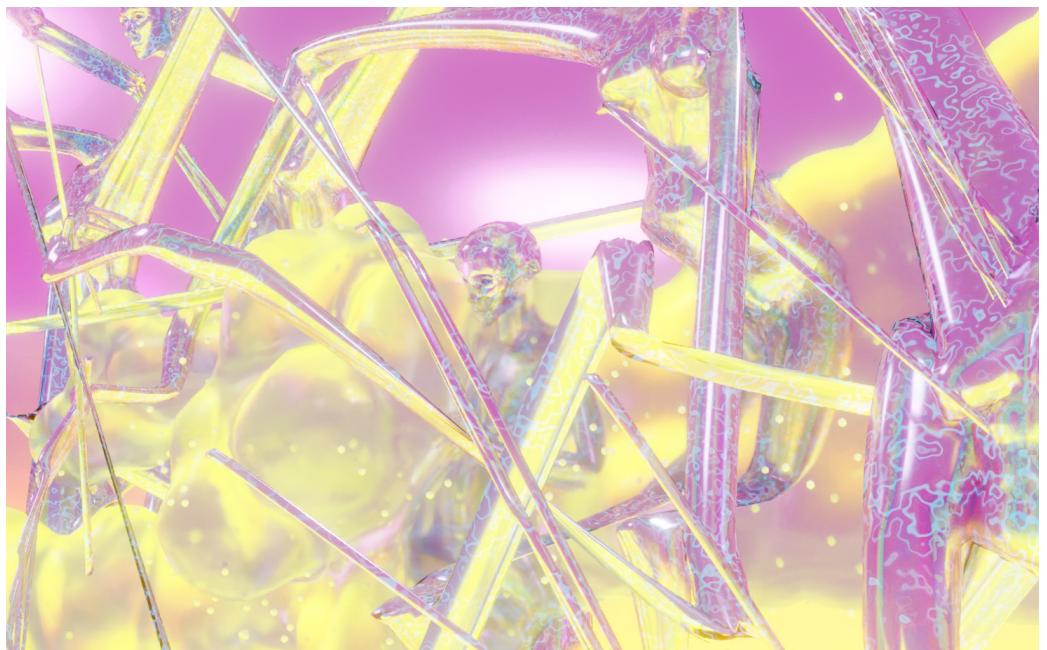

Upbringing in a homophobic country and the experience of reparative therapy leaves deep traumas that often manifest as a sense of disconnection from one's body. Drawing parallels between the controlled neurosis of techno raves and the shamanistic practices of Central Asia, the artist tries to reconnect with her body and sexuality through a cathartic dance. Psychological trauma frozen in time opens up with renewed vigor, blurring the boundaries of real and cyberreality. There is no shame, no place for a heteronormative definition of femininity, artist and her body become one.

E. that E. that Eh

Here is a place for text.

For explanation.

The wall is a map of Emancipation. It's a drifting island.

I remember white sealing and wide shoulders.

— Grl, is it you? — And smth chutched in the hand. — Snickers or Mars? — the shoulders asked.

In Latin E. means refusal

From various types of addictions,

From unlimited connections, from parents, women from men, or from men, or just from women, market from state, island from map.

I wait until I get my chocolate, right?

I had a dream I can earn my way to heaven. I can go free, I can be E!.

They call it a subversive process.

But in a broader sense (it's always a broader sense) It has to become a gain of rights,

Just rights and responsibilities.

A gay revolt, an upraise!

But life is Eh, depending how you dress her. An income curve has blown away.

A map reversed again.

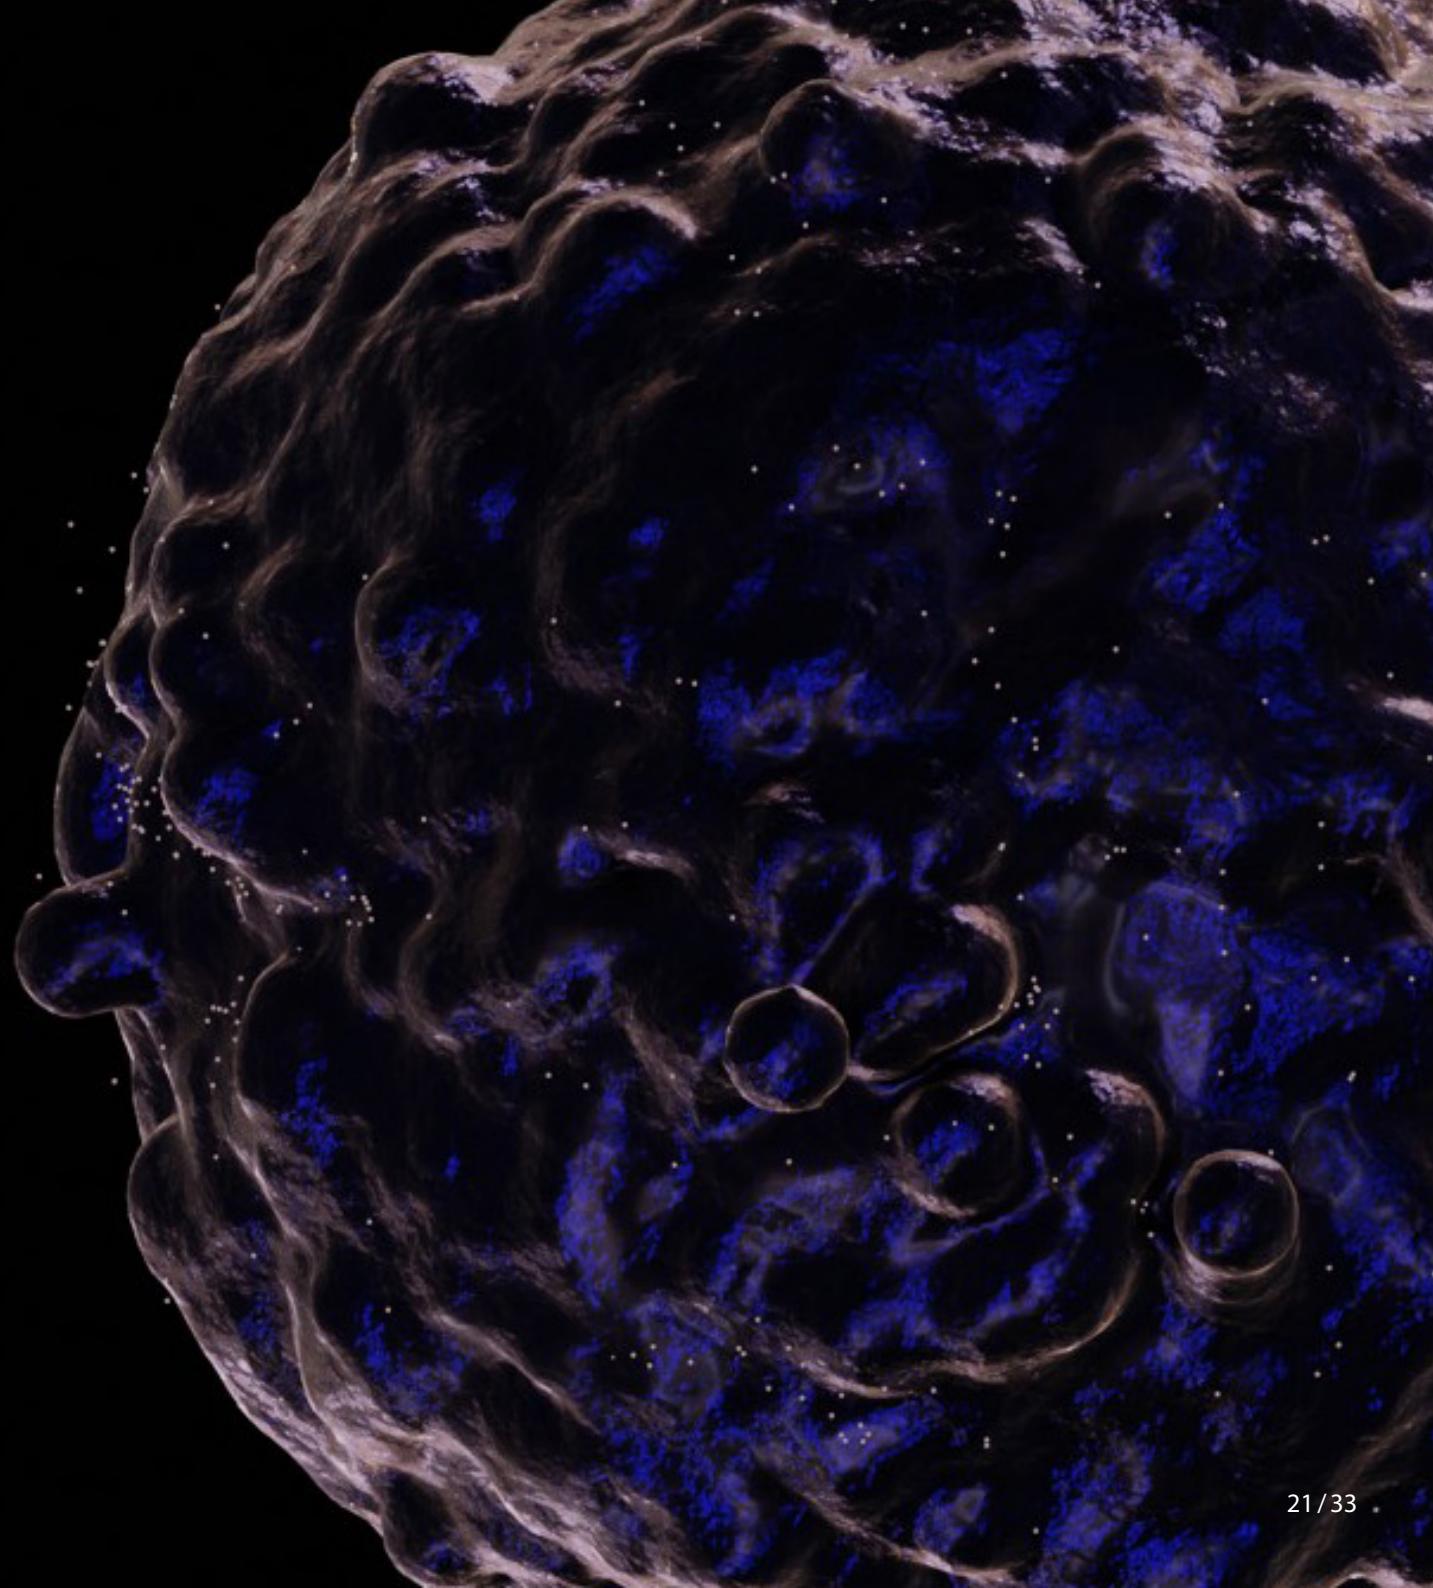

And E. becoming .

They suck each other,

They shine, they shimmer, But so, unreachable as easy, easy, easy shiver.

3D character modelling and animation

An international rewrite with yellow butterflies, avatars and sailor moon.

Satoko Ichihara takes on Puccini's opera "Madama butterfly": a young geisha is married to an american officer. He impregnates her — and disappears shortly afterwards. She later learns that he has remarried and commits suicide. Ichihara turns the tables in her adaptation, developed with theater Neumarkt, and tells the story from the point of view of the single mother. She asks, for example, how the foreign relates to japanese ideals of beauty.
